How Jesus Prayed

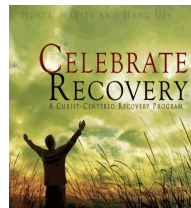

It happened that while Jesus was praying in a certain place, after He had finished, one of His disciples said to Him, "Lord, teach us to pray just as John also taught his disciples." (Luke 11:!)

Jesus also taught his disciples. Life with him was one unending experience of joy and bewilderment, and they were forever attempting to understand him. The disciples could not forget the mighty demonstrations of his power. They remembered the grateful eyes of those lame, blind, sick, dumb, deaf, and afflicted who had been healed and set free and sent back to their loved ones. And here, he was praying, and when he had ceased, one of them spoke to him. The disciples were watching him in prayer and as they watched, one of the disciples realized that somehow the amazing power of Jesus was connected with his prayer life. When he had finished, one of them speaking for all the disciples said to him, "Lord, teach us to pray."

When we say these words, out of hearts that mean them, we have already taken the first and most important step toward discovering the power of prayer. When we ask, "Teach us to pray." We are doing so out of a sense of need and prayer is simply the expression of human need to an eager Father. Prayer is the cry of a beloved child to a father with a father's heart who is ready to pour out all that he has to give, and when we come to this prayer "Lord, teach us to pray," we are crying out of such a sense of need.

With Jesus, prayer was a necessity; it was also perfectly natural; it was frequently intercession; it was communication.

Prayer then is to be our life and our breath so that no one need urge us to pray any more than they would urge us to breathe or to eat. We know we must pray.
